July 15, 2007 — Mount Laurel, NJ, USA

The Bureau of Animal Health/Welfare and Meat & Poultry Inspection awards contract to Nover Engelstein & Associates, Inc. developers of WinWam Software. IDOA field staff will conduct regulatory inspections in the field with their assigned Tablet PCs and electronically forward their inspections to the office staff for processing. IDOA expects to realize savings by eliminating the need to fill out reports by hand and mail them into the office. The WinWam Inspection Software will cut down on response time from inspections in the field and costs less postage and be more timely and effective. In addition this innovative software will improve the Department's efficiency through accuracy, legibility, and data accessibility. It will provide the IDOA with a comprehensive and consistent database of business establishments, full details of inspections and a wealth of data available for analysis.
